Random Event	A Fake Temple of Fancy opens in Tehmor, purporting to offer Real Fancies to discerning buyers.
Background	Anything you Fancy can be found along The Street of False Gods – particularly if you stop off at the Temple of MELLIA in Tehmor. Sometimes it appears to be an Ice Cream Shop, offering exotic flavours found nowhere else (Blackberry Lotus Dreamcake is one favourite). Sometimes it appears to be the most glamorous Dress or Shoe Shop in the City. Sometimes it appears to be a Pet Shop offering cute Blink Puppies or little Displacer Beastie cubs. Sometimes it appears to be an Armourer offering the sharpest and most exotic Weapons (if that is what you Fancy). Dreams can be Real if you believe in them strongly enough, but unless you put your Faith in MELLIA and continue to believe, these Fancies can melt away into the Dreams from which they came. You therefore need to be a powerful Dreamer to wear one of those Dresses to a Ball. The Priest(esse)s of MELLIA all appear to be young, impossibly beautiful and immaculately (if scantily) dressed. It is easy to see why the Temple attracts Followers, but for many the Dreams soon fade.

Notes	Create Fancies: May create Fancies of relevance to current Plots. May produce 2d4 manifesting in Reality (e.g. Fanciful Weapons that can be wielded) per Game Turn, one of which per Game may be an Artefact-level Magic Item of Fancy.
