Background	There are a lot of Pigs in Tehmor. They are kept as a food source, as waste disposal units, as game for hunting in the private estates, and

	sometimes as pets. Escaped Boars live in the Parks and around the City Dumps and roam the streets and alleys in search of food. The largest Boar Cult in Tehmor is that of the Temple of THE GREAT BOAR SNARF (an Aspect of TERRIK) on the Street of False Gods, but there is also a small Shrine to THE GREAT SOW IN THE MOON in the Moon Park outside the Temple of MIRIMI. Sometimes a Temple to or a Prophet of THE GREAT BOAR ESCUS appears along the Street of False Gods, usually promoted by exiles from the North or Kyr. The Evil and Chaotic Boar Temples provide no-questions-asked waste disposal services for all kinds of organic matter (for an appropriate donation). The Temple of SNARF are tolerant of the slaughter of Pigs for food (and have even been known to dine on bacon and sausages after a follower has transgressed), but the Followers of THE GREAT SOW tend to be more militant against pork butchers and generally seek to liberate Pigs to join their herd. Beyond Tehmor there are a few Mist Warrior Boar Tribes in the woods on the edges of the Grasslands, both in Taur-Galen (where they mix with the Wood Elvish Boar Cults and include Half-Elves) and in the foothills of the Lonely Mountains. The Boar Tribes are great truffle-hunters and profit from the sale of their prize White Truffles to the Merchants' Guild of Tehmor. Wereboar Lycanthropy is prevalent in all the Cults, but especially amongst the Cult of THE GREAT SOW IN THE MOON.
