

Anarea Forty Factions Plot Information Sheet

Tarot Card	VIII Justice
Alleyman's Tarot Card:	Death (stubborn) (Page No. 16)
No. & Name of Plot:	52. The Bounty Hunter
Expansion	Forgotten Factions
Description	A Bounty Hunter is in town.
Specify	Specify (i) the Faction which has offered a Reward (which may not be controlled by you or by an Ally of yours), (ii) the amount of the Reward, (iii) who it is for and whether dead and/or alive and (iv) a Bounty Hunter who is seeking it (who may be from a Faction controlled by you, from another Faction or an independent operator). You play that Bounty Hunter. The Player of the Faction which has offered the Reward may subsequently increase its amount (only). Other Factions may specify their own members who will also seek the Reward.
Notes	If the Fugitive Plot is played in the same Game Turn, the Bounty Hunter may seek the Fugitive. Rewards are often offered for the recovery of persons (or animals). A Faction may offer a Reward for someone who has wronged or committed a crime against them, for a renegade member who has disappeared, or even for a missing pet. The Reward is usually (but not always) financial and will customarily specify whether they are to be recovered alive, dead or either. The Assassins' Guild will take contracts to kill someone and will bring back proof as required, but they set their own prices and as a matter of honour will not capture someone alive. A Reward is offered to all and the person offering the Reward sets the price. Such work appeals to freelance adventurers, and is generally not considered to be Assassination, Thievery or Mercenary work, although Bounty Hunters may belong to some or all of these Guilds in order to protect themselves. Specialist Bounty Hunters will travel in search of suitable Rewards and follow fugitives to bring them (or their heads) back for Rewards. There is no code of honour amongst Bounty Hunters. They may agree to co-operate and split a Reward, but may also kill each other as they compete for it. The Reward only remains on offer whilst this Plot is in play.
